Rangamati district primary education officer, adding that classes in all schools will resume within two or three days.

Meanwhile, school students and their families have been facing their own struggles due to the floods.

"Our house has been severely damaged and my fourth grader son's textbooks were washed away," said Chapchar Bwam, of Rangamati's Belaichhari upazila.

Utpal Chakma, of Julaichhari upazila, said, "My daughter is a grade three student. Her school is yet to reopen due to flood damage."

Torrential rain and tidal water have caused the sudden floods that wreaked havoc in the southeastern region, affecting over one million people, according to media reports.

He did not clean the drains and canals, he said they cleaned those on a regular basis, but people throw plastic and polythene wastes hours later.

"The Chattogram Development Authority has been working on 36 canals under a mega project to address waterlogging. But they did not excavate soil from those, so the canals could not contain the rain water," he said.

He said the CDA authorities have assured him of taking necessary actions in this regard after yesterday's meeting.

"After completion of the project, we hope the city dwellers will get relief from waterlogging," he said.

The mayor also stated that this month had the most rain in 30 years, which contributed to the city's severe waterlogging this year.

Meanwhile, in a press conference on Wednesday, CDA chairman Jahirul Alam Dobhash alleged that as the CCC was not competent, the government entrusted CDA with the mega project for addressing waterlogging.

When journalists brought the remark of the CDA Chairman before the CCC mayor yesterday, he said it might be a slip of tongue.

"Every service providing authority has capability... all are competent," said the mayor, adding, "We should not take this remark seriously."

Apart from these, four new rail lines, the third terminal of Hazrat Shahjalal International Airport, second unit of Rampal Power Plant and the Purbachal Expressway are expected to be opened to the public within October.

The development projects are opening just months shy of the national election, and the ruling party is sure to showcase these across the country as evidence of its achievements.

However, not all of them would be fully opened or functional on the day of the launching, as some works, including hiring adequate manpower to run them, will still remain incomplete at the time.

AIRPORT TO FARMGATE IN 10 MINS
The PM will then inaugurate the Bangabandhu Sheikh Mujibur Rahman Tunnel on October 28, Quader said. The 11.50km section from Kowla in the airport area to Framgate will be inaugurated on September 2 and Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina will address a rally at old trade fair ground in Agargaon.

The expressway would be opened to the public the following day, he added.

He said the Airport-Farmgate section will have 15 ramps with a length of 11km, but 13 of those will be opened initially.

The minister also said the highest speed limit for vehicles on the expressway would be 60kmph, and it would take around 10 minutes to reach Farmgate from the airport area.

The rest of the 19.73km expressway -- the first of its kind in the country -- from the airport to Kutubkhali on the Dhaka-Chattoagram Highway, is expected to open in June next year, he said.

People have to pay toll for using the expressway and the authorities concerned are currently discussing the rate, he added.

This is first project in the transport sector being implemented under the Public-Private Partnership model with foreign investment.

TUNNEL TO OPEN ON OCT 28
The PM will then inaugurate the Bangabandhu Sheikh Mujibur Rahman Tunnel on October 28, Quader said.

The physical work of the 9.1km tunnel, under the Karnaphuli, is almost done.

The Bangladesh Bridge Authority has already hired a contractor for running and maintaining the tunnel, while the rate of toll has also been fixed.

The first of its kind in South Asia, the tunnel will ease communications between Dhaka, Chattogram and Cox's Bazar.

After revisions, the cost of the project rose to Tk 10,690 crore from Tk 8,446.64 crore, and it is being completed almost two years behind schedule.

Sayedee, a former Jamaat-e-Islami lawmaker from Pirojpur, was handed death penalty by International Crimes Tribunal-1 in February 2013 after he was found involved in killings in Pirojpur during the Liberation War.

Apart from the murders, the tribunal also found Sayedee, who earned the nickname "Delu Razakar", guilty of abduction, torture, rape, persecution, and abetment to torture, looting, forceful religious conversions, and setting homes ablaze in rural areas of Pirojpur during the war.

Jamaat-Shibir activists had unleashed unprecedented violence in many parts of the country following the tribunal's verdict.

The violence continued for more than a week and armed cadres of Jamaat Shibir clashed with law enforcers leaving more than 70 people, including eight policemen, dead.

In September 2014, the Supreme Court, in a majority verdict, commuted his sentence to imprisonment until death.

In May 2017, the apex court rejected Sayedee's review petition and upheld his jail until death punishment.

Egg price went up further and hit Tk 15, highest on record, on August 12.

The consumer rights directorate launched drives against abnormal profiteering that day and the price dropped the next day.

Shafiquzzaman said if Tk 1 profit is made additionally from each egg, unscrupulous traders have made a profit of Tk 4 crore on a single day. If Tk 2 is charged extra per egg, the amount of profit becomes Tk 8 crore, he said.

"Now you calculate the amount of profit the dishonest traders have made out of recent price spike of eggs," he told the businessmen at the meeting at the DPCR office in the capital.

"This money has been taken from the consumers' pockets in the last few days," he added.

The comment by the DPCR chief comes a day after Fisheries and Livestock Minister SM Rezaul Karim said price of an egg should not be more than Tk 12 at retail.

On Sunday, the minister told reporters at his office that it costs Tk 10.50 to produce an egg. If the price is fixed at Tk 12, stakeholders in the entire egg supply chain will get benefits.
