Water everywhere, yet a drop to drink!

Hospital in Netrakona's haor area runs amid array of crises

OUR CORRESPONDENT, Mymensingh

Khaliajury Upazila Health Complex in Netrakona's Khaliajury upazila has a tale of irony to begin with.

Established in the haor area of the district in 1996, the hospital has water everywhere around it. In fact, it is the only hospital in Netrakona that has a water ambulance service to reach critical patients to upazila and district headquarters during the monsoon.

And yet, the 31-bed hospital has no supply of pure drinking water.

The only deep tube-well at the hospital went out of order more than six months ago but has not been replaced yet to mitigate the drinking water crisis.

"Soon after I joined the hospital in March this year, I informed Public around 40 patients remain admitted to Health Engineering Department about the crisis. They repaired the old deep tube-well but it went out of order again within few days," said Dr Hasanul Mahmud, upazila health and family planning officer in Khaliajury.

The deep tube-well should be replaced by new one, the official added. "It is beyond imagination that a hospital has been running for months without having the facility of pure drinking water supply. It is a basic need for patients, their attendants and hospital staff as well," lamented Mrinal Kanti Deb, a local journalist.

For thousands of poor people in the haor area, the hospital is very much the only place to go for treatment. More than 500 patients throng to the hospital for outdoor and indoor treatment every day, while an average of the hospital daily.

FLOOD IN KURIGRAM

7000 families still stranded

UNB, Kurigram

The water levels of 16 rivers in Kurigram started receding on Friday morning, but nearly 7,000 families of five upazilas have been struggling in stagnant floodwater without drinking water and cooked food.

Over the past two days, 60-80 houses were swept away by the Brahmaputra River due to intense erosion in Chilmari upazila's Navarhat and Shakhahati Chars.

The unfortunate residents of these areas now find themselves bereft of homes, enduring an inhumane existence under the open sky.

Visiting the flood-affected areas, UNB correspondent witnessed the desolate scenes unfolding as people huddled inside their homes, cowsheds, or seeking refuge in boats.

The persisting waterlogging and submerged tubewells is exacerbating the clean drinking water shortage. To add to their misery, they are forced to subsist on dry rations.

The scarcity of cooking fuel has rendered cooking nearly impossible in these areas. Some families have resorted to pooling resources, with 4-5 households sharing a single stove, cooking together to conserve fuel while preparing their meals.

Homes and agricultural land along the riverbanks in Kurigram Sadar, Ulipur, Chilmari, Nageswari, and Rajarhat remain submerged. While erosion along the Teesta's banks has slightly decreased, fresh erosion has emerged within the Brahmaputra basin.

According to the district administration's Disaster Management unit, 18,626 people are still marooned after the third flood hit the district. At
