

India moves to curb onion export

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

India yesterday imposed a minimum export price of $800 per tonne for onions – much higher than the prices at which importers were buying. The export price will remain effective until December 31 this year, said a notification issued by India’s Directorate General of Foreign Trade. The move is apparently to discourage exports and contain the price in the Indian market.

Importers were quoting $150-$205 per tonne of Indian onions before the minimum export price was imposed, said Dipankar Ghosh, organising secretary of the Clearing and Forwarding Agents Association in Bhomra, a land port in the southwest region bordering India.

Import price will increase by over four times, and landing price of the bulbs will be over Tk 100 a kg at the port, he said.

The curb on export by the Indian authority comes two and a half months after it slapped 40 percent duty on the export of onions to tame escalating prices in its domestic market.

The move is likely to fuel price hike of onions in Bangladesh, which meets a portion of its demand through imports mostly from India.

Dipankar said the wholesale price of onions jumped to nearly Tk 100 a kg at the land port yesterday evening from around Tk 80 per kg.

Yesterday, consumers in Dhaka had to buy a kg of locally grown onion for as much as Tk 105 and imported onion for up to Tk 85, according to market price data by the Trading Corporation of Bangladesh (TCB).

Retail price of onions in Dhaka was 21 percent higher from a month ago, and 90 percent higher year on year from Tk 50-55 a kg, showed the TCB data, although the government claims about good harvest of the bulbs.

In Dinajpur, the price of onions soared due to supply shortfall resulting from a seven-day suspension of trade on the occasion of Durga Puja, and the problems in opening letters of credit (LCs), reports our correspondent there.

“In the evening the entire city trembled,” Ukraine’s Emergency Services said on

The posting said emergency workers had rescued two women, in their 70s and 80s, who had been blocked in a building, and brought a fire under control in a rubble-strewn area.

Ukraine’s Suspilne public broadcaster said Russian forces had also shelled Beryslav, a town further north on the Dniro River in Kherson Region, wounding one person.

Meanwhile, national security advisers from around 65 countries have gathered in Malta for a weekend meeting organised by Ukraine to discuss its peace formula for ending the war with Russia.

It is the third such meeting this year after smaller ones in Jeddah and Copenhagen but Russia is not involved.

BNP rally foiled amid violence

Tension had been high over the last few days centring on the high-stake BNP and AL rallies within a radius of two kilometres.

The BNP organised its rally, joined by tens of thousands of its activists from Dhaka and elsewhere, in front of its headquarters to press home its demand for elections under a non-partisan interim government. The AL held its “peace and development rally” at Baitul Mukarram south gate to counter BNP’s.

HOW THE CLASH SPREAD

Since morning, BNP leaders and activists started thronging the rally venue indroves, chanting anti-government slogans. By 11:00am, the entire road stretching from Kakrail intersection to Notre Dame college in Arambagh was packed by party activists and supporters.

Things started to heat up around 11:30am when the ruling party activists on two pickups and a bus were stopped by BNP activists near Kakrail mosque. The AL men were heading towards the Baitul Mukarram mosque to attend their rally, police and witnesses said.

The BNP activists vandalised the pickups and the bus, and a clash ensued. Police present at the spot detained one man involved in vandalism, they said.

Following the clash, more BNP activists rushed to the spot and were seen intercepting pedestrians. Around 12:30pm, they started chanting slogans denouncing police and hurling brick chunks at them, according to our correspondents present at the scene.

Another clash broke out between BNP activists and law enforcers in front of Kakrail mosque around 1:00pm. The law enforcers threw sound grenades and tear shells to disperse them, our correspondents report.

The demonstrators responded by throwing brick chips, and charged the law enforcers with sticks, prompting a chase and counter-chase.

The protesters assaulted several journalists and police members there. A police box near Kakrail Church was torched, while another in front of Kakrail mosque was vandalised. A minibus and a microbus were torched in front of the Institution of Diploma Engineers, Bangladesh.

The clash between the BNP activists and police later spread to Nightingale area. Chased by police, the demonstrators broke into two groups – one going towards Nayapaltan and the other towards Shantinagar.

Border Guard Bangladesh members were deployed to defuse tension in the area.

BNP RALLY FOILED

Around 3:00pm, police approached the BNP headquarters at Nayapaltan from two sides – Fakirapool and Nightingale intersections. They opened blank fire and hurled sound grenades as they reached near the rally venue. The BNP activists lobbed brickbats in retaliation, witnesses said.

Amid police action, BNP Secretary General Mirza Fakhru Islam Alamgir announced the hartal with a hand mike.

“The Awami League activists and police are out to foil our peaceful rally by firing gunshots and throwing sound grenades. We call upon the people to rise,” he said.

Senior BNP leaders, including Mirza Fakhru, reached the rally venue around 12:00pm.

Everything was going on smoothly till 1:30pm when sounds of flash grenades, coming from Nightingale intersection, got louder with the area enveloping in black smoke.

“Don’t be afraid of the sound. This sound is the sound of victory and freedom,” Abdus Salam, convenor of Dhaka South City unit BNP, told the agitated party leaders and activists.

But things got out of control after teargas canisters and sound grenades were used, forcing BNP to leave the venue.

‘POLICE DID THEIR JOB’

In the evening, Home Minister Asaduzzaman Khan Kamal said BNP supporters showered brickbats on police, burnt cars and buses, killed a cop and then called for a hartal.

“We want to assure you that if anyone blocks roads, vandalises and sets fire to vehicles, we will take action. Everything will go on normally,” he told reporters after visiting the injured police personnel at Dhaka Medical College Hospital.

“A policeman was hacked to death. We have pictures. A Chhatra Dal leader brutally beat him up. He was not only beaten but attacked with a machete,” he said.

He added the BNP activists attacked an Awami League procession and set fire to the pickups carrying the leaders and activists of the AL.

“They broke the gate and entered the Chief Justice’s house. In such a situation, police cannot remain silent. Police did their job and dispersed them,” the minister said, adding that BNP activists also set fire to Rajarbagh police hospital and an ambulance.

“Our police force dealt with them with great patience.... They [BNP] are trying to create a situation similar to 2014,” he added.

At a press briefing later in the night, Dhaka Metropolitan Police (DMP) Commissioner Habibur Rahman also warned of legal actions against violence and vandalism in the name of today’s hartal.

“We will take legal action by applying maximum force if anyone tries to harm people’s lives or properties in the name of hartal,” he told reporters at the DMP Media Center around 10:45pm.

THE DEADS AND ARRESTS

Shamim Mia, from Mugda in the capital, succumbed to his injuries sustained during clashes in Nayapaltan area in the afternoon.

BNP claimed he was a ward-level leader of Jubo Dal, although his family could not confirm his political affiliation.

He was taken to the Rajarbagh Central Police Hospital in a critical condition, where doctors declared him dead.

Deputy Inspector General of Police Rezaul Haider, director of the hospital, said there was no sign of injury on his body.

He is believed to have died of a heart attack, added Rezaul.

members. “They only know how to kill, nothing else.”

Kalyan Bank for loan without any collateral.

The PM called upon the people to cast their votes for the AL in the next general election so that the development process in the country can continue.

Chinese President Xi Jinping sent a goodwill message on this occasion. The message was read out by Chinese Ambassador to Bangladesh Yao Wen. He later handed it over to the PM.

Hasina also inaugurated 11 completed projects and laid the foundation stones of six others in Chattogram from the rally.

Awami League General Secretary Obaidul Quader, presidium members Begum Matia Chowdhury and Mosharraf Hossain, Joint General Secretary Hasan Mahmud, and Land Minister Saifuzzaman Chowdhury, among others, spoke at the rally.
