The new terminal can be made operational within four months of the signing of the agreement, informed a senior CPA official.

Initially, small container handling equipment like mobile cranes, forklifts and reach stackers can be brought by the operator, he said.

The firm will get two years to purchase and install heavy equipment like quayside gantry cranes (QGCs) and rubber-tyred gantry cranes and only then will the terminal be fully operational, he said.

“The firm will be appointed to run PCT for 22 years. The initial two years is for installing the heavy equipment and these heavy machineries usually have a (economic) lifetime of 20 years,” he informed.

The PCT has the capacity to handle five lakh TEUs (twenty-foot equivalent units) of containers annually.

Three vessels with 11 metre draft will be able to berth at a time in the terminal, that too in the shortest possible time given its close proximity to the Karnaphuli estuary.
