Health crisis grips Bagerhat villages, vested groups demanding bribes to install water desalination facilities

PARTHA CHAKRABORTY, Bagerhat

A silent health crisis is unfolding in Gulishakhali village in Bagerhat's Morrelganj upazila. Take the case of Putul Akhter, a 32-year-old resident who, along with her family, is grappling with a myriad of health complications, including diabetes, kidney, liver and skin-related issues. Doctors attribute these ailments to the persistent use of saline water for bathing and consumption.

"I consulted doctors multiple times in the last two years. They told me the diseases have developed due to bathing and consuming saline water, and I would not get well if I don't stop using saline water," she said.

Putul lives with her mother-in-law and two children in a small house on the bank of Bhola river, adjacent to the Sundarbans, while her husband lives in Dhaka for work.

"Due to poverty, we are unable to relocate, away from saline water. We don't know how we will survive in this way," she said.

Govt faces 3-pronged challenge

Says Quader

UNB, Dhaka

Road Transport and Bridges Minister Obaidul Quader yesterday said the challenges that lie before the new government are political, economic and diplomatic.

"It's not going to be so easy to protect Bangladesh from the repercussions of the global crisis in these three sectors," Quader said.

The Awami League general secretary was speaking to journalists after the new cabinet paid homage to Father of the Nation Bangabandhu Sheikh Mujibur Rahman by placing floral wreaths at his portrait at Dhanmondi 32 in the capital.

"We've been able to hold a peaceful and fair election, overcoming the crises. This has been possible because of Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina," Quader told reporters.

"The main target of the government is to implement the election manifesto of the party," he said.

INTRA-PARTY FEUD JP relieves two senior leaders of all party posts

STAR REPORT

Two senior leaders of Jatiyo Party were relieved of all posts, in the latest instance of intra-party feud.

JP chairman GM Quader yesterday relieved JP Co-Chairman Kazi Firoz Rashid and JP presidium member Shunil Subho Roy, exercising the power bestowed upon him by the JP charter, the party said in a press release.

GM Quader took the decision a day after several hundred JP leaders and activists staged a demonstration in front of the JP chairman's Banani office, demanding resignation of Quader and secretary general Mujiburul Haque Chunnu.

JP had participated in 267 seats but managed to win in only 11, which is the party's worst outing in the polls since 1991. Most JP contestants lost their security deposits in the 12th parliamentary polls.

Subho Roy was among several JP senior leaders and activists who gave Quader and Chunnu a 48-hour ultimatum to resign from their posts.

They blamed Quader and Chunnu for the debacle in the January 7 national election, an allegation refuted by the duo.

After Quader's decision, Subho Roy said, "GM Quader is no one in the Jatiyo Party, so his order means nothing to me."

Due to increase in salinity, local hospitals and clinics have been witnessing a considerable increase in number of patients.

Putul's mother-in-law Shefali Begum has also been suffering from skin and bone diseases for a long time. Their stories are emblematic of a larger problem affecting thousands in Bagerhat's Sadar, Morrelganj, Sharankhola, Mongla, and Rampal upazilas.

This correspondent, after speaking to more than 50 villagers, found a similar pattern of health concerns plaguing the community. The root cause lies in the relentless intrusion of saline water, a consequence of factors such as sea level rise and geographical vulnerability.

"It seems we are living in a salt mine. We have to drink and use saline water all year round except in the monsoon. That is why we are always ill with complications including diarrhoea, dysentery, hypertension, and skin diseases," said Piara Begum of Gulishakhali.

Sakina Begum of Barukhali village echoed her. Amzad Hossain, 85, of Guatla village, said, "Around 50 years ago, we could use water of Baleshwar river. Later, salt water of nearby Pashur river gradually started to intrude into the Baleshwar," said Amzad Hossain, 85, of Guatla village.

Dredging of Pashur and Bhola rivers resulted in reduction in the rivers' current, which in turn increased the water's salinity, further deteriorating the situation, said locals.

Meanwhile, local hospitals and clinics have been witnessing a considerable increase in number of patients.

Azizur Rahman, a community health care provider in Badsharhat under Morrelganj upazila, said he provides treatment to around 900

Shrinking rivers SHRINK LIVELIHOODS

OUR CORRESPONDENT,
Lalmonirhat

Boatmen in Lalmonirhat and Kurigram are struggling to remain afloat, facing a situation of seasonal unemployment.

Amid the dry winter, around 26 rivers in the districts, including Brahmaputra, Teesta, and Dharla, have dried up and lost navigability, with shoals appearing across them.

Around 200 ghats in the districts, which remain busy for rest of the year, are now empty, leaving around 1,000 boatmen amid a livelihood crisis.

"I am unable to ply my boat while people are crossing the Teesta on foot. Every year we face a livelihood crisis during dry season," said Julhas Mia, a boatman in Kalmati area of Lalmonirhat.

"Of the seven boatmen in this ghat, three have started pulling rickshaws, while the other four are also considering joining other professions," he said.

"Even a decade ago, the situation was different. The river did dry up but remained navigable, and we could ply boats round the year," he added.
