Fearless in bringing change

Six women get 'Nirbhaya' award by UNDP Bangladesh, Star

Sheuly Khatun, 36, hailing from an impoverished background in Satkhira, faced dire circumstances when her husband abandoned her, leaving Sheuly to fend for her two children with no income.

Thanks to financial assistance from UNDP Bangladesh's "SWAPNO" project, Sheuly, who once struggled to sustain herself and her children, now manages an ice cream factory, supporting her own family as well as six destitute women.

Her hard work and integrity shaped her into the woman she is today.

On the occasion of International Women's Day 2024, six women, including Sheuly Khatun, were awarded "Nirbhaya" (fearless) by The Daily Star and UNDP Bangladesh yesterday.

The others are Asma Begum of Dhaka, Nazma Akter Reshmi of Cox's Bazar, Nipu Tripura of Khagrachhari, Poly Khatun of Satkhira, and Suraiya Khan of Khulna.

They were recognised for championing the cause of women changemakers from grassroots communities and handed crests and certificates during a ceremony at The Daily Star Centre in the capital. This was the fourth edition of the "Nirbhaya" initiative.

Asma Begum, 40, was honoured for her efforts to restore greenery by planting trees in the capital's slum areas, while 23-year-old Nazma Akter Reshmi was recognised for her innovative business venture producing fish powder and crackers.

Nipu Tripura, born in Rangamati, once uncertain about her future during the pandemic, now produces mushrooms on a large scale, generating 12,000 spawns per month. She has created job opportunities for five other women.

With just Tk 7,000 from UNDP's project, Suraiya Khan, a survivor of child marriage, has become a successful egg entrepreneur, setting an example for many women in her village.

At the event, Stephen Lillard, resident representative of UNDP Bangladesh, said learning about the Nirbhaya's experience was deeply inspiring.

"Not only to us, but to all the people who will be reading about your journeys, about overcoming adversities, challenging discriminatory norms, and your triumphs to help uplift others in your communities and beyond," he said, addressing the Nirbhayas.

"Let us remember that achieving a sustainable and equitable world for our future generation requires guaranteeing the rights and freedom of women and girls across all aspects of life," he added.

Mahfuz Anam, editor and publisher of The Daily Star, said the confidence displayed by the Nirbhayas should serve as an example for others.

"I extend my salute to you and find much inspiration in your confidence. For those facing financial hardships, it is very difficult to overcome such challenges and achieve success. And it is tougher for women," he said.

"It is a weakness on our part that we fail to respect women, and often harbour the perception that we are superior to women - this mindset infects us, leading to discrimination against women in society," he added.

UNAUTHORISED EATERIES DSCC fines LabAid, 3 establishments

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

A mobile court of Dhaka South City Corporation yesterday fined LabAid Hospital Tk 2 lakh for running an unapproved restaurant on the rooftop of its Green Road establishment in the capital.

Besides, three restaurants and establishments on the road - Boushakkhi Restaurant, Pizza Garage, and Babu Land - were also fined Tk 1.70 lakh during the drive, led by DSCC executive magistrate Md Jahangir Alam.

This was the fourth consecutive day of the drive after a deadly fire at Green Cozy Cottage shopping mall on Bailey Road claimed 46 lives on February 29.

"The court found a rooftop restaurant cafeteria built on LabAid's 8th floor, violating approved design. We also found fault with the fire extinguishing system and leakage in one of the gas cylinders kept near staircase," said the magistrate.

TCB not hiking sugar price

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Trading Corporation of Bangladesh has walked back its decision to raise sugar price by Tk 30 per kg, taking the price to Tk 100 per kg.

The state-owned company was selling a kilo for Tk 70 yesterday morning.

While inaugurating TCB's commodity sales programme in the capital's Tejgaon, State Minister for Commerce Ahsanul Islam Titu said, "I apologise for our mistake. We will be more cautious to ensure small issues don't escalate into major ones."

Despite the fire at a sugar mill, the existing sugar stock is sufficient, he added.

TCB increased sales price of sugar by 43 percent (Tk 30 per kg) in a bid to contain subsidy bills.

Humayun Kabir, spokesperson of TCB, announced the sale of sugar at Tk 100 per kg, citing increased subsidies due to global market price spikes and higher import costs. The retail price of sugar in Dhaka is Tk 140-150 per kg.

FEMALE MIGRANT WORKERS Govt shouldn't send them as house helps: speakers

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Migrant workers going abroad should be prepared in a way so that they can talk about their own rights, Salim Reza, full time member of National Human Rights Commission, said yesterday.

Addressing a seminar at Probashi Kalyan Bhaban in the capital, Salim, a former secretary of expatriates' welfare ministry, said migrant workers are going abroad without minimum life skills.

"All of them have to be provided with compulsory skills training," he said, emphasising the need to provide them with training on languages of destination countries.

If migrant workers are sufficiently skilled, they will be able to earn more, he added.

Centre for Women and Children Studies (CWCS), with support of Manusher Jonno Foundation, organised the consultation seminar on "Reintegration of Returnee Women Migrants".

On the migration of female workers abroad, Salim said instead of sending female workers as house helps, Bangladesh should focus on sending them for "decent jobs".

Pointing to migration of over 13 lakh workers abroad last year alone, he said the government needs to monitor migrant workers in host countries to ensure their well being.

He also said government institutions were not serving the purposes of people as per their requirements.
