মহাব্যবস্থাপক (হিসাব ও অর্থ) ও আস্ক্রায়ক, স্থায়ী নিল্লাম কমিটি Oil prices climbed in early trade on Thursday, supported by strong demand in the US after gasoline stocks hit a three month low and crude stockpiles dropped unexpectedly, with supply concerns remaining after Ukrainian attacks on Russian refineries. Brent futures for May climbed 11 cents, or 0.13 percent, to $84.14 a barrel at 0652 GMT, while April US West Texas Intermediate (WTI) crude rose 10 cents, or 0.13 percent, to $79.82 per barrel. Both contracts had risen about 3 percent to a four-month high on Wednesday on the elevated US demand outlook and heightened geopolitical risk.

"Strong US products exports led gasoline stock to fall to a threemonth low. Rising gasoline prices are supporting crack spread for refiners. Market also reacted to increasing geopolitical risks after a Ukrainian drone attacked a Russian refinery," said ANZ analysts in a client note. US gasoline inventories slid for a sixth straight week, falling by 5.7 million barrels to 234.1 million barrels, the Energy Information Administration (EIA)said on Wednesday, triple the expectations for a 1.9 million-barrel draw. Stocks of motor fuel

Stocks of motor fuel at the US Gulf Coast fell to their lowest since November 2022, while finished motor gasoline supplied, a proxy for demand, edged up 30,000 barrels per day to more than 9 million bpd for the first time this year.
