HIJACKED MV ABDULLAH 'Beware of what you publish'

Says ex-captain who was once a hostage

MD NAZRUL ISLAM, Ctg

The authority or owning firm of the ship, which has been hijacked by Somali pirates, needs to exercise caution while making comments to the media, said a former captain of a vessel who went through the same ordeal.

"The pirates often follow international media like BBC and CNN and come to know what the hijacked ship's authority is saying to the media, and their responses to those comments might reflect on how they treat the ship's crew," said former Master Captain Farid Ahmed.

Farid was captain of MV Jahan Moni, a Bangladeshi ship that was hijacked by Somali pirates in the Arabian Sea on December 5, 2010.

With his 25 crew members, along with the wife of the ship's chief officer, who was on board the ship, Captain Farid endured 100 haunting days of being held hostage by the pirates.

After the ship and its crew were let go, Farid returned to the country, left the job, and migrated

When speaking up is a 'crime'

PSTU teacher remains suspended after protesting corruption in teachers' recruitment

ARAFAT RAHAMAN

A teacher at Patuakhali Science and Technology University (PSTU) has remained suspended for around 10 months for the "crime" of speaking out against the university authorities regarding irregularities in teachers' appointments.

Mehedi Hasan, a professor at the language and communication department, was suspended in May last year for "circulating posters tarnishing the image of university authorities".

The posters were displayed in May 2023 to commemorate the fifth death anniversary of a university student who applied for a teaching position in the soil science department but reportedly took his own life after being denied the job due to corruption in recruitment process.

The posters called for the resignation of Vice-Chancellor Prof Swadesh Chandra and Registrar Prof Santosh

Kumar Bose, alleging their involvement in corruption regarding teacher recruitment and the student's death.

The university authorities suspended Mehedi on May 28 last year on disciplinary grounds, although there was no proof till now that it was indeed Mehedi who put up such posters.

Meanwhile, in a complaint letter to Mehedi on June 14, it was stated that he was distributing posters and spreading provocative and offensive remarks about the administration.

The suspension was also attributed to his failure to publish articles in peer-reviewed journals and to pursue further degrees within his initial two years as a professor.

Prof Mehedi said, "I have been protesting against irregularities of the university authority for many years. I was vocal about the student's death and corruption in teachers' recruitment. So they framed and suspended me."
