

JASHORE ROADS Forest dept to fell 2,044 trees

Locals protest decision

OUR CORRESPONDENT, Benapole

While Jashore has been suffering from a heatwave over the last three weeks, the Forest Department has decided to cut down 2,044 trees on four roads in the district.

A tender notice -- signed by Abul Kalam, Jashore divisional forest officer of Social Forest Division -- was published in this regard in two local newspapers on April 25 to sell the trees, reports our local correspondent.

Meanwhile, environmental organisations protested the decision, citing the chopping of trees as one of the main reasons for the extreme heatwave and urged plantation of more trees.

"Tenders are being invited on specified conditions for the sale of forest trees and other forest products that have passed the cycle of social forestry," the notice read.

The notice said 243 old trees along a 3km stretch of road from Narendrapur in Jashore Sadar upazila to Andulia, 979 old trees along the 9km stretch from Chanchra Bhaturia Sharapole to Tentulia village, 502 old trees along the 4km stretch in Keshabpur upazila from Barendra Bazar to Pacharai, and 310 old trees along the 2km road from Bagharpara upazila's Dhoakhola Bazar to Talbaria are to be sold.

The trees include rain trees, bakain (chinaberry), oak, mahogany, shegun (teak), babla (acacia), and khai babla (edible acacia).

Md Ohidullah, a social worker of Chanchra union in Jashore Sadar upazila, said the environment of this area is relatively cooler as there are many trees on both sides of the Chanchra-Bhaturia road.

"There are also many bird nests in the trees. If the trees are cut down, the balance of nature will be disrupted," he added.

Jashore DFO Md Abul Kalam said, "The trees are a part of social forestry. After a specified rotation period, these trees are cut down and reforested. It has been decided to cut down the trees according to the rules."

However, the Jashore Road Development and Century Tree Protection Committee protested the decision of the Forest Department.

Committee convener Khandaker Azizul Haque and member secretary Zillur Rahman in a statement said the Forest Department has invited tenders for the sale of more than two thousand very old trees for social forestry. "We are condemning and protesting this ineffective initiative of the Forest Department."

"We demand the cancellation of the tender call immediately," it said. At the same time, they called upon conscious citizens to unite against those who destroy nature.

On January 18, 2018, the High Court issued a stay order for six months on the felling of century-old Jashore-Benapole highway trees in the backdrop of protests against the government's solution to widen the road.

Denmark's former prime minister joins AUW as patron

STAR REPORT

Helle Thorning-Schmidt, Denmark's first female prime minister and leader of the Danish Social Democrat Party, has joined the Asian University for Women (AUW) in Bangladesh as a patron.

"I am delighted to be joining the Asian University for Women as a Patron. No other university in the world does what AUW does -- it proactively seeks out through numerous creative methods to reach the most marginalised adolescent girls in the world, prepare them for university education, and graduate them as extraordinarily well-rounded and skilled young women who carry a strong determination to devote their lives to overcoming injustice and underdevelopment," said the former PM.

Educated at the University of Copenhagen and the College of Europe, Helle Thorning-Schmidt also served as the chief executive officer of Save the Children International, said a press release.

The AUW Council of Patrons is chaired by Chief Patron Sheikh Hasina, also the prime minister of Bangladesh. Other Patrons include Cherie Blair (UK); Laura Bush (US); Emma Bonino (Italy) and other luminaries.

Why can't road crashes

The man driving the truck did not have the licence required for heavy vehicles.

A probe into the road crashes found either the vehicles had no fitness clearance, drivers had no valid licence, or the road had issues.

Contacted, Amin Ullah said they have been conducting daily mobile court sessions.

"Although we are taking action, road crashes are not coming down. We are going to hold the meeting to know why this is happening," he told The Daily Star yesterday.

An official of the division said there are road safety councils at district and upazila levels under the leadership of deputy commissioners and UNOs.

Besides, police enforce traffic laws at district and upazila levels too, he said.

Divisional commissioners and range DIGs are supposed to monitor these works, he said, adding, "The meeting is going to be held to know whether there were any problems there and strengthen the monitoring."

In March 2019, a committee commissioned by the government provided 111 recommendations to decrease road accidents and instill order in the transportation sector. Subsequently, a task force led by the home minister was established that year to execute these recommendations, yet despite holding numerous meetings over the past four years, nearly all the suggestions have gone unimplemented.

puts wives at risk of facing more pressure to follow traditional roles, he added. In most families, the migrant workers are the sole breadwinner of the family, while the other family members lack effective financial management skills, he also pointed out.

Many families become trapped in a vicious cycle of debt, often to finance the expenses associated with migration and, in many cases, to sustain extravagant spending habits driven by competition with others, he also highlighted.

He emphasised the importance of providing special care to the children of these families by teachers, particularly regarding the responsible use of the technology.

"The migrant workers are deprived, and in some cases deceived, and it is unfortunate that the children of these families are going astray. This is completely unacceptable," said Prof Rasheda Irshad Nasir, dean, faculty of social sciences, Dhaka University. "As citizens of a developing country, we encourage both men and women to migrate to earn remittances for the country. Family members need counseling to understand the importance of responsible money management; otherwise, it can have detrimental effects on the earners who are far from home for years on end," she added.

The session was chaired by JU VC Dr Sadeka Halim.

Abul Kalam, another recipient of a cornea, stated, "I've been unable to see with my left eye since childhood, but now, after the implant, my vision has been restored." BSMMU's Dr Rajashree Das conducted the cornea collection and transplantation process. She said the corneas are to be collected within six hours after a person's death and the procedures of transmission take only 10-15 minutes. BSMMU VC Prof Deen Md Nurul Haque also spoke at the event.

As households spend over 68 percent of the total health spending, the total OOP expenditures are about Tk 1,07,386 crore, he said, adding that the government allocation would have to increase threefold to reach the goal of reducing OOP expenditures to 30 percent.

Prof Hamid said there is also a lack of quality private hospitals across the country, especially at the upazila and district levels.

He stressed the need for a robust community-based healthcare system focusing on preventive and promotional care, with community clinics as the primary point of contact.
