In the turbulent landscape of 2023, the financial sector faced challenges such as a surge in non-performing loans, contracting spreads, and liquidity constraints. While the banking sector rebounded in spreads after the first quarter, the third quarter saw a similar resurgence in Non-Banking Financial Institutions (NBFI). Throughout the year, NBFI encountered significant hurdles, mainly due to historically low-interest rate spreads. Despite deposit rate increases, lending rates remained capped until July, leading to a notable decline in various financial indicators. In June, NBFI experienced a historic low-interest rate spread of only 0.27%, significantly impacting profitability. By December 2023, the interest rate spread for NBFI contracted to a mere 3.23%, posing a significant obstacle to profitability and long-term sustainability.

To navigate the crisis and lead the finance sector in Bangladesh, NBFI are poised to adopt strategic approaches. Prioritizing operational efficiency is crucial, involving cost reduction strategies, technological optimization,

A major focus for NBFI should be on improving their portfolio and assessing it properly to ensure the quality and sustainability of their investments. This includes regular stress testing and scenario analysis to identify potential vulnerabilities.

solutions for innovative funding options. Furthermore, NBFI should focus on enhancing their governance and transparency practices. This includes adhering to regulatory requirements, implementing robust internal controls, and maintaining clear communication with stakeholders. In recent times, we are facing a significant liquidity crisis, which underscores the need for these strategic approaches. Improving liquidity management is paramount; by adopting more rigorous forecasting and planning, NBFI can ensure they have adequate resources to meet their obligations and support ongoing operations. Adopting these strategies will enable NBFI to play a pivotal role in stabilizing and advancing the finance sector in Bangladesh amidst the ongoing challenges. By doing so, NBFI can not only weather the current crisis but also emerge stronger and more resilient in the long term.

Government support is crucial for the further expansion of the financial sector, especially in addressing non-performing loans (NPLs) and improving the quality of financial portfolios. By focusing on policies to ease the current inflation and liquidity crisis, the government can create a more stable economic environment. Specifically, addressing NPLs through improved governance mechanisms will significantly contribute to the sector's expansion. Implementing stringent measures to handle default loans efficiently will enhance the overall quality of financial portfolios. This, in turn, will create a more conducive environment for the growth and stability of the financial sector, enabling it to better support economic development and resilience against future crises.

Currently, IPDC is running 4 ongoing campaigns, which include IPDC Auto Loan with Audi, IPDC Auto Loan to own a pre-owned car, Bhalo Basha Home Loan to build a house in any area of the country, and availing exclusive offers with Priti Privilege Card.
