Block raids unnerve city residents

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

City residents, still reeling from the shocks of deaths and destructions over the quota protests, are now feeling a fresh wave of fear.

Almost every day, a column of vehicles carrying law enforcers reaches some neighbourhoods, in some cases after sundown. Members of different forces jump off their vehicles, quickly cordon off the area and take position at different points. In some cases, their left hands grip the gun barrels with the right hand index fingers placed on the triggers.

An announcement through a megaphone hits the building walls and reverberates through the area: Go inside your home, don't try to come out.

Panicked, locals do as they are told – a block raid begins.

Soon, internet connections at targeted homes get snapped and street lights go off one by one. Only the searchlights mounted on the law enforcers' vehicles light parts of the area. In the next one to two hours, additional forces are called in, who then split into different groups and start raiding different houses.

This is how residents of at least eight areas in the capital shared their experience to The Daily Star.

"Before conducting a drive, we collect the digital footprint and information provided by local sources including the ruling party men to identify the troublemakers and trace their whereabouts."

The raids are creating further worries among the residents whose trauma is still fresh from the deaths of at least 162 people (according to this newspaper's count; actual figure could be much higher) in recent violence centring the quota protest.

The eight areas that saw such raids are Matuail, Shanir Akhra, Jatrabari, Kajla, Bashundhara, Shahinbagh, Mirpur DOHS, ECB Chhattar and Matikata.

During the raid, law enforcers knock on the door, get inside and arrest anyone suspected to have been involved in violence or were in contact with any troublemakers, police and locals said.

Joint forces have been conducting the block raids in different areas of the capital and other parts of the country to arrest those suspected to have been involved in the violence centring the quota protests.

STUDENTS ARE TOP TARGET

Till yesterday police confirmed 2,536 arrests while Rab arrested 71 in the capital alone.

Default loans to soar, banks' profit to dip

MD MEHEDI HASAN

Bankers are dreading a big drop in their profits as their defaulted loans are likely to increase further due to the curfew and the five-day internet blackout.

The defaulted loans are likely to increase further as business people are suffering due to the ongoing unrest, said Naser Ezaz Bijoy, chief executive officer (CEO) of Standard Chartered Bangladesh.

At the end of March, total defaulted loans stood at a record Tk 182,295 crore, which is 11.10 percent of total disbursed credit, as per the latest published data of the central bank.

It was a plot to cripple the economy

Says PM while visiting wounded in Nitor

UNB, Dhaka

Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina yesterday said the recent violence in the country was part of a conspiracy to reduce Bangladesh to a nation of beggars by crippling the economy.

She said this after visiting the National Institute of Traumatology and Orthopedic Rehabilitation (Nitor), popularly known as Pangu hospital, in the capital.

Hasina, also the chief of Awami League, once again said it is up to the country's people to try the culprits who were behind the deadly violence.

"So many families have been affected. Who is responsible for this?" she asked.

She narrated how the BNP-Jamaat alliance unleashed a reign of terror and

14 foreign missions urge govt

DIPLOMATIC CORRESPONDENT

In a letter to Foreign Minister Hasan Mahmud, 14 foreign missions in Dhaka urged the protection of human rights and fair trials for those arrested in the wake of last week's violent clashes.

They also expressed deep concern over the casualties and destruction of public properties during the unrest centring the student protests demanding reform to government job quotas, diplomatic sources said.

The joint letter sent to the foreign
