

Imran 'ready to apologise' if PTI role in riots proved

DAWN ONLINE

Former prime minister of Pakistan Imran Khan on Wednesday offered to apologise for the May 9 riots, provided the involvement of PTI supporters in the violent protests was proved.

His remarks came during a media talk at the Adiala Jail following the proceedings of the £190 million corruption reference against him and Bushra Bibi.

Khan said if CCTV footage identified that the PTI workers had trespassed and attacked government installations, he would not only apologise, but also expose those from the party, and ensure their prosecution before a court of law.

The ex-PM, however, pointed out that he too was manhandled on May 9, as Rangers had dragged him from premises of Islamabad High Court despite the fact that he was "the most popular leader in Pakistan".

Palestinians gather to receive food at a UNRWA distribution centre amid a hunger crisis in Jabalia in the northern Gaza Strip yesterday. The health ministry in Hamas-run Gaza said that at least 39,699 people have been killed in the Israeli offensive, which is now in its 11th month.

UN troubled by Thai opposition party ban

AFP, Geneva

The United Nations yesterday said the dissolution of Thailand's main opposition Move Forward Party was "deeply troubling" and seriously impacted fundamental freedoms.

The Constitutional Court, Thailand's top court, voted unanimously on Wednesday to dissolve the MFP, the vanguard of the country's youthful pro-democracy movement, and ban its executive board members from politics for 10 years.

"This decision seriously impacts fundamental freedoms of expression and association, and people's right to participate in public affairs and political life in Thailand," UN human rights chief Volker Turk said in a statement.

"No party or politician should ever face such penalties for peacefully advocating legal reform, particularly in support of human rights."

The MFP took first place in a general election last year after pledging to reform Thailand's strict royal defamation law.

Calling the court move "deeply troubling", Turk said UN human rights mechanisms had long expressed concern about Thailand's lese-majeste laws, saying they were inconsistent with the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights.

"I call on the government to find pathways to ensure a vibrant, strong and inclusive democracy that promotes and respects rights to freedom of expression and association, and end use of lese-majeste laws to suppress critical voices," said Turk.

Anarchy is our enemy

"The fresh air of freedom," he said, seeking cooperation from people.

"Secondly, our peace and discipline maintaining institutions will not be excluded from [enjoying] this freedom. The army, navy, air force, border guard, police, Ansar, Village Defence, and coast guards will not be left out. Like everyone else, each of their members is today free from the extrajudicial coercive orders of the dictator government. If there is deviation from this in the slightest for anyone, our celebration today will be tarnished," he added.

Alleging that the "cruel autocratic government" was in power by using these forces, Prof Yunus said the government would restore the previous glories of these forces.

"Those who were involved in wrongdoings will be brought to justice," he said, adding that the same applies to all ministries, agencies, and educational institutions.

"Every criminal will be brought to book," he said.

He called on everyone to join their respective offices and enjoy the freedom of independence.

Earlier, Yunus called upon all to save the country from chaos and violence. He said restoring law and order would be his first priority to take the country forward.

"Keeping faith in me, you have invited me; the students have invited me, and I have responded to that invitation. My appeal to the people: if you have faith in me and trust me, then ensure that no attack is carried out on anyone and anywhere in the country. This is our first responsibility," he told a crowded news briefing upon his arrival in Dhaka from abroad in the afternoon.

Flanked by the navy and air force chiefs, Chief of Army Staff General Waker-uz-Zaman received Yunus at the airport.

Some key organisers of the anti-discrimination student movement and representatives of the civil society were also present at the airport to welcome him.

Prof Yunus said, "Today is our day of glory. We have to move forward keeping in mind the revolution through which a new Victory Day has been created in Bangladesh today."

The microcredit pioneer expressed his gratitude to the young people who made it possible. "They have saved this country. They have given rebirth to our country. Our pledge is that we will take the country forward at a very fast pace after this rebirth."

In a choking voice, Prof Yunus paid tribute to Abu Sayed, the student who was among those killed first in police firing during the anti-discrimination student movement.

"I am remembering Abu Sayed. His image is etched in the mind of each Bangladeshi. No one will be able to forget it -- an incredibly courageous young man standing in front of guns. No young men and women accepted defeat after that, and they marched forward."

The movement then spread across the country and Bangladesh achieved independence for the second time, Prof Yunus said.

He said the people must protect this freedom. "We also have to make sure that the benefits of this freedom reach every citizen. Otherwise the freedom would be meaningless. So, we pledge to take the freedom to every home."

Prof Yunus said the elderly citizens have to make the young people understand that this country is in their hands. "You [young people] will build the country as you like. Since you could liberate the country, you will also be able to build it as you like. The whole world will watch you and learn how a young generation can change the country."

He said the people have no confidence in the government system as they think it to be an instrument of repression.

"This cannot be a government system. The government will come forward to help and protect the people, and stand by them... We have to bring the confidence back to the people so that they join the government."

The Nobel Peace Prize winner said Bangladesh is a big family.

"We want to move forward unitedly. We want to overcome the hesitation and conflict. Those who have gone astray will have to be brought back on the right path so we can work together."

Speaking about vandalism and arson attacks on the religious minority communities and state establishments, Prof Yunus said those were carried out as part of a conspiracy.

"Our job is to protect them, protect everyone. Every human being is our brother and sister, and we have to protect them and restore discipline."

He said chaos and violence are the greatest enemies of progress. He urged all to stop violence and make a pledge not to take law into own hands and resort to repression anyone.

"Our law enforcement agencies should be built in such a way that we would feel secure about action to be taken against the troublemakers once they are handed over to them."

US PRESIDENTIAL POLLS

Biden, Harris warn of Trump threat to democracy

AFP, Detroit

US President Joe Biden said Wednesday he is "not confident" Donald Trump would concede peacefully if he loses the US election, as the Republican's rival Kamala Harris warned a Trump victory would usher in a lawless administration set on curtailing Americans' freedoms.

Trump has been impeached twice and indicted twice over various alleged attempts to cheat in the 2020 election -- which he still has not acknowledged he lost -- and was convicted of 34 felonies over a hush money scheme to deceive voters in 2016.

His false claims of widespread fraud in 2020 preceded the storming of the US Capitol -- and the wounding of more than 100 police officers -- by a violent mob determined to prevent the certification of his defeat.

"If Trump loses, I'm not confident at all," Biden told US network CBS after he was asked if he expected a peaceful transfer of power in 2025.

"He means what he says. We don't take him seriously," Biden warned. "He means it."

The president's remarks, which air fully on Sunday, came soon after Harris had sounded the alarm over Trump's conduct in the opposite scenario -- victory for the 78-year-old billionaire.

Speaking to a crowd in Eau Claire, Wisconsin as part of a multi-day tour of swing states, she used the former president's own words -- as well as his felony convictions -- to argue that a second Trump term would be a disaster for America.

She pointed to his vow to be a dictator "on day one," his threats to weaponize the Justice Department against his political enemies and his 2022 comment demanding the "termination" of constitutional provisions over his 2020 election defeat.

"Someone who suggests that we should terminate the constitution of the United States should never again have a chance to stand behind the seal of the president of the United States," Harris said, exhorting Americans to reject the "chaos, fear and hate" of Trumpism.

Harris reprised the theme hours later at a rally in Detroit, where she called herself and her new running mate, Minnesota Governor Tim Walz, "joyful warriors" in White House battle.

The 59-year-old vice president was on day two of a blitz of the most closely-fought election battlegrounds as she seeks to capitalize on a surging excitement since she replaced Biden atop the Democratic ticket in July.
