Govt settling for lower GDP growth target

Next fiscal’s budget size would be Tk 790,000cr

REJAUL KARIM BYRON and ASIFUR RAHMAN

The interim government may backtrack from its initial plan to set an ambitious GDP growth target of 6 percent for the next fiscal year amid the new economic reality and settle for 5.5 percent.

The development comes following lower projections by multilateral lenders. For instance, last week the Asian Development Bank forecasted next fiscal year’s growth would be 5.1 percent.

A 6 percent GDP growth is very high in any condition and in any comparison to global economic growth or the South Asian growth average, Zahid Hussain, a former lead economist of the World Bank’s Dhaka office, earlier told The Daily Star.

The new GDP growth target, inflation and the size of next budget were discussed at yesterday’s fiscal coordination council meeting, led by finance adviser Salehuddin Ahmed.

The government’s main target is to bring down inflation in the next budget, The Daily Star has learnt from finance ministry officials with knowledge of the discussions in the meeting.

“We are keeping the low GDP rate aiming to reduce the inflation,” said one of the officials.

The inflation target will be set at 6.5 percent by the government in the upcoming budget while the ADB has projected that inflation would be hovering around the 8 percent mark next fiscal year.

This fiscal year, the government set the inflation target at 8 percent while the ADB’s projection was 10.2 percent.

The country’s overall inflation stood at 9.35 percent in March, up from 9.32 percent the month prior, according to the latest data released by the Bangladesh Bureau of

‘Tearing down walls’ to expand trade alliances

Says China amid US standoff; Beijing, Hanoi sign 45 co-op deals

AGENCIES

China is “tearing down walls” and expanding its circle of trading partners, “shaking hands” instead of “shaking fists”, its foreign ministry said yesterday, as Beijing works on diversifying ties amid an escalating trade war with the US.

President Donald Trump has added an eye-watering 145 percent of tariffs on Chinese goods this year as part of broader reciprocal duties on all US trading partners. That prompted ridicule and criticism from Beijing, which retaliated by jacking up levies on US goods by 125 percent.

“In the face of external uncertainties, China will insist on shaking hands rather than shaking fists, tearing down walls instead of building barriers, connecting instead of decoupling,” Lin Jian, a foreign ministry spokesperson, told a press briefing yesterday.

The World Trade Organization has warned the high-stakes Sino-US trade row could cut the shipment of goods between two economies by as much as 80 percent and severely hurt global growth.

Beijing has called US President Donald Trump’s tariffs strategy “a joke”, irritating US Treasury Secretary Scott Bessent. “These are not a joke. I mean these are big numbers,” Bessent said in a Bloomberg Television interview.

Xi on Monday kicked off a three-nation tour of Southeast Asia, which President Donald Trump said was aiming to “screw” the United States.

“I don’t blame China. I don’t blame Vietnam. I don’t. I see they’re meeting today, and that’s wonderful,” he said. “That’s a lovely meeting... like trying to figure out, how do we screw the United States of America.”

In Vietnam, which is facing potential US tariffs of 46 percent, Xi called for the two countries to oppose “unilateral bullying” and to strengthen cooperation in production and supply chains, reports Reuters.

Chinese and Vietnamese officials also signed 45 cooperation deals during Xi’s visit, including on production and supply chains as well as railway cooperation.

After a two-day stop in Hanoi, Xi will continue his Southeast Asian trip by visiting Malaysia and Cambodia, which could be slapped by additional US tariffs of 24 percent and 49 percent, respectively. Meanwhile, China has told its airlines to stop taking deliveries of jets from American aviation giant Boeing, reports AFP.

Bloomberg News reported yesterday that Beijing has also told its carriers to suspend purchases of aircraft-related equipment and parts from US companies.

Bloomberg said the Chinese government is mulling helping carriers that lease Boeing jets and face higher costs.

‘There is nothing illegal about it’

“The law is in use. It’s not like this law has not been used before. This is not the only instance where it has been applied. There is nothing illegal about it,” he said, referring to the Special Powers Act.

Khuda Baksh was talking to reporters at a home ministry press conference at the Secretariat after a core committee meeting on law and order.
