Law being drafted to ensure Rab accountability

Rab DG tells Police Week seminar

MOHAMMAD JAMIL KHAN

A draft of the Rab Law-2024 is being prepared to ensure accountability within the force, AKM Shahidur Rahman, director general of the Rapid Action Battalion told a meeting yesterday.

Two and a half months ago, the UN Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights, in its fact-finding report on the July uprising, recommended disbanding the force, citing serious human rights violations and abuses.

"If this law remains in effect, no one will be able to use force for personal gain," he said in a presentation during a closed-door seminar as part of the ongoing Police Week, according to sources.

The Rab has long been accused of violating human rights. In 2021, the US imposed sanctions on the Rab and six former top officials of the agency over reports of gross human rights violations.

Chinmoy Das granted bail

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Former ISKCON leader Chinmoy Krishna Das Brahmachari yesterday got bail from the High Court after 156 days in jail in a sedition case filed in connection with disrespecting the Bangladesh national flag.

However, Justice Md Rezaul Haque, the chamber judge of the Appellate Division, stayed the bail moments later following a petition moved by additional attorneys general Mohammad Arshadur Rouf and Aneek R Haque on behalf of the state.

Later, the apex court chamber judge withdrew the stay order on a suo moto (voluntary move), Chinmoy's lawyer Apurba Kumar Bhattacharjee told The Daily Star.

The SC chamber judge may hold a hearing on Sunday on the state's petition challenging the HC verdict on bail in presence of the lawyers from both sides, Deputy Attorney General Farid Uddin Khan told The Daily Star.

The HC bench of Justice Md Atoar Rahman and Justice Md Ali Reza granted the bail after a hearing on a rule that earlier asked the state to explain why he should not be granted bail.

BANGLADESH'S RESPONSE TO TRUMP TARIFFS

US will get work plan by next week

REFAYET ULLAH MIRDHA

Bangladesh will send the work plan to the United States Trade Representative (USTR) within the next week to reduce the trade gap as part of the efforts to bring down Trump's reciprocal tariff, currently on pause until July 9.

The government is preparing the work plan by incorporating the feedback from stakeholders, said Commerce Secretary Mahbubur Rahman, who took part in the first round of negotiations with the USTR last week in Washington DC.

The USTR has given Dhaka more than a month to send the work plan, which cannot be longer than five pages. But the government will send it within the next five to seven days so that the next round of negotiations can be started as soon as possible, he said.

"We will not promise anything outside the World Trade Organisation (WTO) rules." For instance, if any duty is reduced, it will also be reduced for all other countries under the WTO's most-favoured-nation (MFN) clause.

Bangladesh should rationalise its tariffs regardless as part of the preparations for graduation from the least-developed country bracket in November 2026, Mahbubur said.

The government will build a warehouse such that more US cotton can be imported. Currently,

Bangladesh imports most of its cotton from neighbouring countries and Africa for shorter distances and lead time than the US.

Moreover, Bangladesh will sign contracts with the US for importing LNG from the US. Currently, Bangladesh imports LNG from the Middle East at higher prices, Mahbubur said.

In the work plan, Bangladesh will also inform on the status of labour law reforms and the progress made in areas of protection of Intellectual Property Rights.

Bangladesh will also push for a Free Trade Agreement (FTA) with the US.

After sending the work plan to the USTR, Bangladesh will send the draft proposal for FTA negotiation to the US, the commerce secretary added.

If consensus on tariff reduction cannot be reached through negotiations, Bangladesh will seek an extension of the 90 day pause, said Finance Adviser Salehuddin Ahmed while addressing a group of businesspersons at the pre-budget consultative meeting.

However, Bangladesh will not anger the US; rather, the government will enhance engagement with the Trump government.

"Engagement is the best way forward in negotiations," he said, adding that the SEE PAGE 10 COL 5

'Abolish Women's Affairs Reform Commission' Demand Islamist parties

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Islamist parties under the banner of Jatiya Ulama Mashayekh Aemma Parishad yesterday demanded immediate abolition of the Women's Affairs Reform Commission.

They also rejected the recommendations of the commission and called for a new commission comprising "pious, educated, and socially conscious women who truly represent the country's female population".

Expressing concern, they said the government had taken comprehensive reform initiatives to cleanse the remnants of past autocratic rule, a step supported by the public, and some commissions, like the Constitution Reform Commission, reflected commendable intentions.

However, speakers said the recommendations made by the Women's Affairs Reform Commission are contrary to, what they say, the nation's beliefs, values, and traditions, and have directly hurt religious sentiments.

The speakers claimed that many of the commission's recommendations are inspired by Western ideologies and contradict Bangladesh's social realities and the true needs and struggles of the country's women.

Firing, suing of journos worrying

Says Ain o Salish Kendra

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Ain o Salish Kendra (ASK) has expressed concern over the recent dismissal of three TV journalists, the naming of at least 137 journalists as accused in connection with July uprising cases, and the filing of attempted murder cases against cultural activists.

In a statement signed by its Senior Coordinator Abu Ahmed Faizul Kabir, ASK cited media reports indicating that the three TV journalists were removed from their jobs after a press conference at the office of the cultural affairs adviser turned confrontational.

It said journalists had posed questions about the name change of Mongol Shobhajatra, its UNESCO recognition, the use of a mask resembling the face of a former prime minister, and the number of casualties in the July-August uprising.

Following the press briefing, a Facebook page called for action against the journalists and threatened a "march to Deepto TV, Channel i, ATN Bangla" if no action was taken within 24 hours. The three were subsequently dismissed.

On the broader issue of legal harassment, ASK said at least 137 journalists have been accused in 32 criminal cases across Dhaka, Chattogram, Bogura, and Rajshahi, with some even facing charges under the Explosive Substances Act.

Referring to a committee formed in October 2024 to monitor harassment cases against journalists, ASK said, "Even after its formation, new cases against journalists continue to appear, while the status of earlier cases SEE PAGE 10 COL 4
