Envoys tell govt

DIPLOMATIC CORRESPONDENT

Labour reform and accountability must remain a priority in Bangladesh across all political contexts, top western diplomats said yesterday.

They also appreciated the progress made in the country so far.

The diplomats made the statement during a high-level meeting with Lutley Siddiqi, special envoy to the chief adviser for international affairs, at the Chief Adviser's Office in the capital's Tejgaon.

The high commissioners and ambassadors of the US, UK, Canada, European Union, among others, and representative of the International Labour Organization (ILO), were present at the meeting.

The meeting was called to review the past eight months of progress on labour reforms and outline the interim government's roadmap ahead.

Technical experts and labour rights specialists were also present, according to a statement of the press wing of Chief Adviser's Office.

Cross-sector collaboration key to health reforms

Speakers tell workshop

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

The Health Sector Reform Commission has recommended a major overhaul of the health sector, but implementing the proposals will be both challenging and time-consuming, said health experts yesterday.

They said in addition to government agencies, the involvement of political parties, non-governmental organisations, and professional bodies of doctors and nurses is essential to implement the recommendations effectively.

They made the remarks at a workshop on the reform commission's report, which was submitted last week, organised by Bangladesh Health Watch at the BRAC Tower in the capital.

The 12-member commission, led by Prof AK Azad Khan, recommended a range of reforms, including changes in health administration, the enactment and amendment of around two dozen laws, and recognition of primary healthcare as a basic right through a constitutional amendment.

The commission also proposed

RECOMMENDATIONS

- Involve political parties, NGOs, medical professional bodies
- Start taking measures via ordinances, SROs
- Form technical committee, separate secretariat
- Find pragmatic ways to prioritise implementation
- Get assistance from reform commission if necessary

allocating 15 percent of the national budget to the health sector and creating nationwide networks of pharmacies, diagnostic laboratories, blood supply services, and ambulance services.

Public health expert Abu Jamil Faisal said the commission suggested changes to about 20 health-related laws and policies, along with nearly a dozen others.

"It would take at least five years to implement these changes," he said.

He said the willingness of political parties would be crucial, as some new laws would need to be enacted.

Some recommendations, he noted, lacked clear guidance on how to be implemented. "It would have been better if there were clearer directions for implementation," he said.

Yasmin H Ahmed, an adviser to Bangladesh Health Watch, said the report is very comprehensive,

NCP clarifies stance on controversial slogans at protests

Calls for renewed nat'l unity

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

The National Citizen Party (NCP) yesterday expressed concern over controversial slogans chanted during recent "anti fascist" student protests, clarifying that none of its members were involved in chanting anything that undermined Bangladesh's historic struggles.

In a statement signed by Saleh Uddin Sifat, joint member secretary of the party, NCP said, "While people from diverse political affiliations spontaneously joined the ongoing movement demanding the ban of Awami League, the inclusion of party-based trials under the International Crimes Tribunal Act, and the declaration of the July Proclamation, a particular group deliberately used slogans against Bangladesh's historical legacy."

EC REGISTRATION SC set to hear Jamaat's appeal today

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court is set to hold hearing on Jamaat-e-Islami's appeal today against a High Court verdict that scrapped its registration with the Election Commission as a political party.

On May 7, the apex court bench fixed today for hearing the appeal following a prayer from Jamaat's lawyer Mohammad Shishir Manir.

The HC on August 1, 2013 scrapped the Jamaat's EC registration.

Syed Rezaul Haque Chandpuri, secretary general of the Tariqat Federation, along with 24 others, filed the petition on January 25, 2009, seeking its order declaring the Jamaat's registration illegal.

The EC scrapped the Jamaat's registration in October 2018, ahead of the 11th national election.

'Fall of fascist ruler a victory for democracy'

Says Prof Ali Riaz

UNB, Dhaka

The primary victory of democracy has been secured through the fleeing of the fascist ruler during the July uprising, said Prof Ali Riaz, vice chairman of National Consensus Commission, yesterday.

"Now, everyone must move forward with collective efforts to achieve the goal of victory," he said at a dialogue with Ganatantrik Bam Oikya (an alliance of leftist political parties) at the Jatiya Sangsad Bhaban.

A 20-member delegation, led by Abul Kalam Azad, coordinator of the alliance and also convener of Social Democratic Party, joined the talks with the consensus commission.

Chairing the discussion, Prof Ali Riaz said the people have long aspired to establish a democratic state, and their struggles over the last 53 years reflect that enduring desire. "Although that aspiration remains unfulfilled, people have consistently engaged in democratic movements," he said.

Prof Ali Riaz said the commission aims to establish consensus whereas the responsibility of political parties and forces, alongside civil society, in Bangladesh is to maintain the continuity of the democratic struggle and to strengthen this unity to build an accountable state.
