Six killed, 15 hurt in road accidents

STAR REPORT

Six persons were killed and 15 others injured in road accidents in three districts yesterday, according to reports from our correspondents.

In Chattogram, a laguna hit Sher Mohammad, 60, and left him dead on the spot on Chattogram Cox's Bazar highway while he was crossing the road.

Meanwhile, a bus collided head-on with a pickup, leaving the van's driver Abdul Quader, 42, dead on the spot, said Jasim Uddin, OC of Patiya Crossing Highway Police Station.

In Sunamganj, two District Administration employees — Shomirul Haque Jewel, 38, and Sobdor Ali, 37 — were killed as their motorcycle was hit by an oncoming car in Joykalah area of Shantiganj upazila.

Joykalah Highway Police Station OC Suman Kumar Chowdhury said Jewel died on the spot while Sobdor succumbed to his injuries while being taken to Sylhet.

In Mymensingh, two buses collided head-on in Bhoraduba area on the Dhaka-Mymensingh highway in Bhaluka upazila at around 7:30pm, leaving the bus helpers dead on the spot and 15 others injured, said police.

The deceased are Md Sharif, 21, and Md Nirob, 15. The injured were sent to Mymensingh Medical College Hospital and Bhaluka Upazila Health Complex.

Duck farming gains ground in Netrakona haors

JAYDUL ISLAM

During the monsoon season, young people in the haor regions of Netrakona are becoming self-reliant by engaging in low-cost duck farming.

The growing interest in duck farms is also creating an alternative source of employment for the district's rural youth.

In this agriculture-based region, Boro and Aman paddy grow in abundance. But when farming activities come to a halt during the monsoon, most people in the haor areas depend on fishing in the open waters of rivers, canals, and beels.

As not everyone succeeds in fishing, many youths are now turning to duck farming in the vast stretches of haor waters, rearing ducks for six to eight months at a time.

Ducks grow quickly on natural food, reducing the need for costly feed. The open waters and vast crop fields of the haor are proving to be ideal for rearing, which not only generates employment but also helps meet local demand for eggs and meat, said officials.

Among the district's 10 upazilas, Madan, Mohanganj, and Khaliajuri are completely haor areas, while Kalmakanda, Barhatta, Atpara, and others have low-lying lands that also create a favourable environment for duck farming during the monsoon.

Mohsin Mia, a duck farmer from Uradighi village in Raypur Union, said he and two friends started a farm with 2,500 ducks, which now lay 1,900-2,000 eggs daily.

"Before the harvest, we need to provide some additional feed, but it's still very low compared to other farming costs," he said.

Farmer Nur Kamal of Kalmakanda said, "I spend most of my time managing the farm, but I can't handle it alone. I have three permanent workers, and sometimes I need to hire a few extra hands. Rearing 4,000 ducks is not easy, but it has created employment opportunities for at least three more people."

Homemaker Jamila Khatun of Jahangirpur village in Sadar upazila said, "I rear ten ducks at home. Since I cannot afford to buy fish and meat, the eggs and meat from these ducks help meet my family's food needs."

There are 1,009 government-registered duck farms in the district, said District Livestock Officer Md Shahidullah.

"Beyond that, we estimate there are more than 5,500 unregistered small and large farms. Together, these farms are directly creating employment for at least 10,000 people."

District Livestock Office Additional Director Sadikul Islam said, "Duck farming is essential to meet the district's demand for eggs. Duck meat also plays an important role in meeting local meat demand. We provide guidance and support to small-scale farmers to ensure production continues smoothly."

Jobless growth

The share of people living in extreme poverty has also risen to 9.35 percent this year, up from 5.6 percent three years ago. This means one in every four people now lives below the poverty line, while one in every 10 is trapped in extreme poverty.

Another 18 percent are in the "vulnerable non-poor" group, at risk of falling into poverty anytime.

Selim Raihan, professor in the Department of Economics at Dhaka University and executive director at the South Asian Network on Economic Modeling, said despite periods of high GDP growth, Bangladesh has failed to generate enough decent jobs to lift people out of poverty. "The 'jobless growth' phenomenon is real, and it's exacerbated by rising inequality. International evidence confirms that in countries with growing inequality, poverty reduction becomes much slower and more difficult."

Access to quality education is another major concern, he noted. With 70 percent of education costs covered by households, many poor families cannot afford meaningful access to quality education. This limits their children's job prospects and perpetuates intergenerational poverty, he added.

MA Sattar Mandal, emeritus professor and former vice-chancellor of Bangladesh Agricultural University, said the recent rise in rural poverty reflects deep structural challenges within the rural economy.

"First, we are witnessing a sustained decline in agricultural growth. Second, the real wages of agricultural labourers have eroded. Third, there has been a contraction in rural non-farm income, which typically accounts for around 60 percent of household earnings."

"Taken together, these trends help explain why rural poverty is rising more sharply than urban poverty. Addressing this reversal will require urgent policy focus on improving agricultural productivity, protecting real wages, expanding rural employment, and increasing capital flow into the non-farm economy."

Fahmida Khatun, executive director at the Centre for Policy Dialogue, said jobless growth, stagnant investment, and flawed employment metrics are worsening poverty in Bangladesh. She also identified climate change as an emerging threat. With over 40 percent of youth classified as NEET — Not in Employment, Education, or Training — she stressed that meaningful employment generation must be central to reversing the current poverty trend.

Eminent economist Prof Rehman Sobhan was also present at the event, while Hossain Zillur Rahman, executive chairman of the PPRC, moderated the event.

Code violations cloud run-up

BNP-backed Jatiyataabadi Chhatra Dal (JCD) has been especially active. Its VP, GS, and AGS hopefuls have been seen touring halls, corridors, and messes. JCD leaders denied breaking rules.

"We are not campaigning. We're only exchanging greetings. Since ballot numbers are not out yet, this cannot be termed campaigning," said GS candidate Nafiu Jibon.

Still, allegations persist. Some students claim JCD hopefuls knock on the doors late at night to ask for votes. The candidates call these "courtesy visits," and say it is not against the rules.

Jamaat-backed Islami Chhatra Shibir, under the banner of Somnilito Shikharthi Oikya, has taken a more extravagant approach, combining daytime outreach with night-time attar distribution, muri parties, and biryani feasts. RU Shibir president and VP candidate Mostakur Rahman Zahid defended the activities. "We are not campaigning, we are listening to students," he said.

On distributing attar, he added, "As per tradition, such gifts are nothing new. We gave attar as goodwill."

At Shaheed Ziaur Rahman Hall, Shibir-backed candidates recently hosted a dinner for an entire block of students under the title of a "views-exchange meeting."

Other panels criticised the move.

"We don't have parent organisations pumping in money. Shibir's spending is destroying the level playing field," said independent VP candidate Ripon Islam.

His running mate, GS candidate Shaheen Sheikh, added, "Students are asking us when we'll throw parties. But we don't have the funds."

Left-leaning groups are taking a different route. The combined slate of Bangladesh Chhatra Odhikar Parishad and Federation of Students, under Rucsu for Radical Change, along with the Democratic Student Council, are gathering student demands and publishing them on banners as a "People's Manifesto".

"This is not code violation. It's participatory democracy. If this is illegal, then all other campaigns are too," said Fuad Ratul, convener of Socialist Students' Front.

Chief Election Commissioner Prof F Nazrul Islam said the scope for action before the final list is limited. "After the publication of the final candidate list, if anyone violates the code of conduct, the Election Commission will take decisions, even up to cancellation of candidacy," he said.

Chief Returning Officer Prof Setaur Rahman said, "We've received no written complaints. Without them, we cannot act. It's impossible for us to monitor who is campaigning where."

Contacted, RU Pro-VC Prof Farid Uddin Khan said, "If events are linked to polls, the commission should investigate."

Contraceptive crisis grips health

The report shows that 4.86 million oral contraceptive pills were distributed nationwide in May 2024. In June 2025, the figure plummeted to 0.25 million before rising to 1.22 million in July. That month, pills ran out in 136 upazilas, while 114 had low stocks.

While the supply of contraceptive injections has not fallen as sharply, a crisis of disposable syringes was reported earlier this year. In February 2025, 0.54 million injections were provided nationwide, dropping to 0.339 million in June. By July, 62 upazilas had run out of injections and 89 had no syringes.

The use of intrauterine devices (IUDs) also declined from 16,047 in October 2024 to 4,418 in July 2025. Stocks ran out in 226 upazilas by April and in 334 by July.

The number of implants distributed was 49,003 in January 2025, falling to just 733 in June. In July, 101 upazilas had no implants and 132 faced stock shortages.

Emergency pregnancy pills (ECPs) dropped from 7,581 in September 2024 to 2,584 in July 2025, with 44 upazilas out of stock. By July 2025, all 494 upazilas were without iron-folic acid pills for women.

Tariqul Islam, district family planning officer in Gaibandha, said the supply declined due to procurement complexities at the central level but added that the situation is now improving.

Earlier, Marzia Haque, the then director (Materials and Supply) at the Directorate General of Family Planning, told The Daily Star that after the fourth sector project ended in June 2024, it was not possible to procure contraceptives for the fifth sector project due to a lack of funds from both the development and revenue budgets.

Officials said contraceptives are usually purchased under a project for four to five years. Abdur Razzak, the current director (Materials and Supply), said, "We had a shortage of contraceptives, but currently pills, condoms, and injections are being adequately distributed across the country since early August for the next three months. We have submitted a DPP for the next two years for procurement of contraceptives. If it is passed in Enec this year, then the crisis will be over for the next two years."

Professor Dr Ferdousi Begum Flora, former president of the Obstetrical and Gynaecological Society of Bangladesh, warned, "The country has been experiencing a prolonged shortage of contraceptives, which will have far-reaching effects on our population and economy. The shortage of contraceptives will lead to an increase in unwanted pregnancies, which will not only increase the population but also raise the abortion rate. Consequently, the maternal mortality rate due to abortions will also increase. Women will face various health risks."

She stressed that ensuring an adequate supply of contraceptives should be treated as a national priority for a populous country like Bangladesh.

Locals halt felling nearly 250 shops. No one has ever been harmed by falling branches," he said.

The controversy began when heavy rain in July caused a small banyan tree to tilt near the fish market. After shop owners sought its removal, the local union parishad informed the upazila administration.

Sadar UNO Hosne Ara visited the site and recommended felling both the banyan and the raintree.

On learning of this, market committee leaders and residents approached the acting chairman of the local union parishad and later submitted pleas to the UNO and the deputy commissioner.

They also signed a written pledge accepting responsibility for any damage caused by the raintree.

Contacted, UNO Hosne Ara said some people had demanded felling of both the trees when she visited the site. That is why an auction was called for the raintree as well.

"Following the request of the market committee and locals, the auction has been halted. However, since they are not allowing the trees to be felled, they have been asked to make a pledge."

Gayeshwar said BNP believes in religious values but not in using religion to spread hatred. "Whatever the faith one follows, religion is a way of life meant to guide people in the right direction," he said. Human Research and Analysis Foundation organised the discussion titled "July Revolution and the Future Thoughts of Democracy" at the Jatiya Press Club.
