

RAMADA BY WYNDHAM COX'S BAZAR

Where weddings find their stage

Destination weddings have changed the way we think about the big day. For many, it has quietly changed into a celebration of space, atmosphere, and stories we share. Couples are now expecting their guests to do more than just go to a wedding; they want their guests to live the experience. And Ramada by Wyndham Cox's Bazar, sitting on Kolatoli Beach along Marine Drive, does exactly that. It takes the idea of a beachfront wedding and gives it structure, reliability, and a touch of elegance needed to keep everyone, from family elders to friends flying in, at ease.

Accommodation is always a concern for weddings that pull in relatives from near and far. The property's 143 rooms, ranging from ocean front rooms to hill-view spaces, ensure that style and comfort are not afterthoughts.

Presidential and Royal Suites step in for those who want indulgence, while the rest of the rooms still maintain the same sense of care and design.

The scale of weddings also demands flexibility in space. Ramada Cox's Bazar meets this with banquet halls that can be adjusted to fit the mood. Shugondha Banquet Hall, with over 4,000 sq. ft., is ideal for the big night and comfortably accommodates up to 240 guests. For something more intimate, Himchari Hall and Laboni Hall allow for 120 and 60 guests respectively, while the Teknaf Boardroom provides a more exclusive setting for close-knit functions or even pre-wedding planning sessions. Each hall comes with modern AV, internet, and on-hand support, cutting out the usual stress of technical hiccups.

Then comes the in-between. Not only do guests come for the ceremony, but they also spend days preparing for it. The infinity rooftop pool, Arabika Coffee Lounge, Sonali Restaurant, and Ocean Rooftop Lounge are just a few of the lifestyle options that keep things interesting without ever feeling like they are slowing down. The Moroccan Bath, spa, sauna, and salon are all health features that can be added to the wedding to make it more of a leisurely affair.

Cox's Bazar, with its endless stretch of shoreline, already ticks the box for being a natural stage. And, when paired with the right venue, the celebration stops being only about the scenery and becomes something far more refined. To its very essence, the Ramada by Wyndham Cox's Bazar provides more than just a location. It gives you peace of mind knowing everything, from the view of the sea to the comfort of the rooms, is all in one area. Because of this, it is a subtle yet effective option for destination weddings.
