

Emergency personnel search for victims in the rubble of two collapsed buildings in the Al Massira area of Fes, Morocco, early yesterday. The four-storey buildings collapsed, killing at least 22 people, the state news agency said. Sixteen others were wounded as searches for “other people who may be buried under the rubble” were ongoing. The Fes prosecutor’s office said in a statement, there had been a family celebration in one of the buildings at the time of the collapse while the other was unoccupied.

RESOLUTION TO BAN PTI, IMRAN KHAN Pakistan ruling party, PTI trade fresh barbs

DAWN ONLINE

War of words between members of the Pakistan’s ruling PML-N and the PTI continued yesterday, with Coordinator to the Prime Minister on Information for Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Affairs Ikhtiar Wali Khan saying that “things have reached a point of no return”, while PTI chairman Barrister Gohar Ali stressed that “better sense should prevail”.

In a press conference held yesterday, Wali assailed the PTI for its recent actions, warning the party, “We have tolerated you with much grace and for the sake of democracy; however, things have now reached a point of no return, no mercy and no tolerance.”

“All doors to talks are now closed,” Wali said. PTI Chairman Gohar, speaking to the media yesterday, objected to the resolution, warning that the government was attempting to “pitch federating units against each other.”

On Tuesday, the Punjab Assembly adopted a resolution to ban incarcerated PTI founder and former prime minister Imran Khan and his party for being “anti-state”.

“You are isolating a major political party. Does removing them from due process save democracy?” the PTI chairman asked.

“I said it to them yesterday as well. This is not business, you can not minus one, and be left with another.

“If we are removed, then they will not be left either.”

“If this continues, then things will get out of control within a month,” he added.

THAI-CAMBODIA BORDER CLASHES 500,000 flee to shelters

AGENCIES

Half a million evacuees in Cambodia and Thailand were sheltering in pagodas, schools and other safe havens yesterday after fleeing fresh fighting in a century-old border dispute in which US President Donald Trump has vowed to again intercede.

Five Thai soldiers and seven Cambodian civilians have been killed in the latest fighting, officials said, while more than 500,000 people have fled border regions near where jets, tanks and drones were waging battle.

AFP journalists in northwestern Cambodia’s Samraong town yesterday morning heard the blasts of incoming artillery from the direction of centuries-old temples in disputed border areas.

By the afternoon, hundreds of families were leaving a shelter at a pagoda near Samraong where they had been staying since Monday.

“Authorities say it is not safe anymore,” said Seut Soeung, 30, as she rested alongside a road with her family and vehicles passed by loaded with people, dogs and bags of clothes.

A policeman who asked not to be named said the displaced families were being evacuated from the temple grounds due to safety concerns after a few Thai jets flew nearby.

- » Conflict expanded to five provinces of both countries
- » Thailand says third party should not initiate talks

Thailand and Cambodia dispute the colonial-era demarcation of their 800-kilometre frontier, where competing claims to historic temples have spilled over into armed conflict.

This week’s clashes are the deadliest since five days of fighting in July that killed dozens and displaced around 300,000 before a shaky truce was agreed, following intervention by Trump.

Both sides blame each other for instigating the reignited conflict, which has expanded to five provinces of both Thailand and Cambodia, according to an AFP tally of official accounts.

Thai defence ministry spokesperson Surasant Kongsiri told reporters yesterday that more than 400,000 civilians have been evacuated to shelters.

Asked about the prospect of further intervention by Trump, a Thai government spokesperson said there had been no talks with him so far, while Bangkok’s position was that negotiations should not be initiated by a third party.

Yesterday, Cambodia withdrew its athletes from the Southeast Asian Games in Thailand, citing safety reasons and their families’ concern, reports Reuters.

Thailand’s military said BM-21 rockets fired by Cambodian forces landed near the Phnom Dong Rak Hospital in Surin district yesterday, forcing the evacuation of patients and staff to a shelter.

Democracies must fight for freedom Says Nobel laureate Machado

REUTERS, Oslo

Democracies must be prepared to fight for freedom in order to survive, Nobel Peace Prize laureate Maria Corina Machado said yesterday, in a speech delivered by her daughter during a ceremony Machado could not attend.

The Venezuelan opposition leader said prize held profound significance, not only for her country but for world. “It reminds the world that democracy is essential to peace,” she said, via her daughter Ana Corina Sosa Machado. “And the most important, the lesson Venezuelans can share ...forged on a long and difficult path: if we want democracy, we must be prepared to fight for freedom.”

NCP unveils 125 candidates

Atikur Rahman from this seat.

Similarly, NCP Chief Coordinator Nasiruddin Patwary will run for Dhaka-18, facing off against BNP nominee SM Jahangir Hossain, joint convener of the Dhaka North BNP, who previously contested the polls. Jamaat primarily selected Ashrafal Haque as its candidate for the seat.

NCP nominated its Senior Joint Member Secretary Tasnim Jara for Dhaka-9, where former Chhatra Dal General Secretary Habibur Rashid Habib will be contesting as a first-time candidate in the national polls.

BNP had kept this seat open amid discussions that it might be allocated to Jara, who has already begun her election campaign through social media.

Jamaat selected Kabir Ahmed, central vice president of the Bangladesh Workers Welfare Federation, a labour wing of the party, as its candidate for Dhaka-9.

NCP Senior Joint Member Secretary Nahida Sarwar Niva will contest from Dhaka-12, where BNP fielded Saiful Alam Nirob, former president of Dhaka City North BNP. Nirob, also former president of Jatiyatabadi Jubo Dal, ran in the 2018 polls with BNP’s ticket.

Jamaat picked its central leader Saiful Alam Khan Milon from Dhaka-12.

Sarjis Alam and Hasnat Abdullah, two chief organisers (north and south) of NCP, will be running from their home constituencies: Sarjis from Panchagarh-1 and Hasnat from Cumilla-4. Its Senior Joint Chief Coordinator Abdul Hannan Masud will contest from his home constituency Noakhali-6.

“We have published the first list with names for 125 seats. More names will follow in phases,” Nahid told a press conference at the party’s temporary office in Bangla Motor after announcing the list yesterday.

He said the list reflects the spirit of the mass uprising, aiming to validate ongoing reforms rather than simply pursue power.

The initial list prioritises public participation, diversity, and representation of those who were active in the uprising, he said, adding, “We responded to the call of the people.”

About seat coordination within the 3-party alliance, Nahid said, “NCP plans to nominate candidates in all 300 constituencies, after which discussions with alliance partners will take place.”

The party, meanwhile, did not yet field any candidate for Dhaka-10. Nahid said the party could not identify a suitable candidate for the seat.

According to sources, NCP may nominate LGRD Adviser Asif Mahmud Shojib Bhuiyain, who submitted his resignation from the advisory council yesterday, for Dhaka-10. He recently became a voter for the constituency as well.

BNP nominated its Executive Committee member Sheikh Rabiul Alam, who earlier contested in the 2018 polls from Dhaka-10, while Jamaat announced Supreme Court lawyer Jashim Uddin Sarkar as its candidate there.

Although NCP leaders had earlier said they would not field candidates in seats where BNP Chairperson Khaleda Zia would contest, one of which is Dinajpur-3, out of respect, it has nominated H M Shamsul Muktaadir for the constituency.

WOMEN CANDIDATES Fourteen women leaders and activists of NCP were nominated for seats across the country.

Though the party’s Senior Joint Convener Samantha Sharmin was not included in the list, she has already purchased a nomination form for Bhola-1.

Apart from Jara and Niva, other nominees are Joint Convener Tajnuva Zabin for Dhaka-17; Nabila Tasnid for Dhaka-20; Monira Sharmin for Naogaon-5; Dilshana Parul for Sirajganj-3; Mahmuda Mitu for Jhalakathi-1; Dyuti Aranya Chowdhury for Sirajganj-4; Tanha Shanta for Mymensingh-11; Syeda Nilima Dola for Faridpur-3; Israt Jahan Bindu for Chandpur-2; Advocate Humayra Noor for Noakhali-5; Shagufta Bushra Mishma for Chattogram-10; and Advocate Monjila Jhuma for Khagrachhari.

So far, NCP has fielded the highest number of female candidates in its announced candidates list.

BNP till now has nominated 11 women, including its Chairperson Khaleda Zia.

Jamaat has yet to announce a candidates list. It has, however, already picked candidates in most seats, none of whom are women.

At yesterday’s press conference, Nahid said, “The candidates list includes professionals, women, minorities, expatriates, and youth leaders. We ensured gender balance and inclusion.”

Tasnim Jara, also member secretary of the party’s Election Steering Committee, said her party introduced a modernised nomination process to ensure accessibility for “qualified and community-minded citizens”.

“Over 1,500 applications were submitted nationwide,” she said at the conference. “We hope this preliminary list will reflect many new and unconventional faces. The era of politics dominated by corrupt powerbrokers must end.”

NCP Chief Coordinator Nasiruddin Patwary said, “If any nominee is found involved in corruption, extortion, criminal activity, or loan default, their candidacy will be cancelled immediately upon public complaint.”

He added that all candidates must strictly follow the Election Commission’s electoral guidelines once the schedule is announced, including the removal of unauthorised posters and adherence to financial rules.
