BDR EXPLOSIVES CASE 161 languish in jail as trial drags on

They served their time or have been acquitted in murder case

ASHUTOSH SARKAR and EMRUL HASAN BAPPI

For the family of ex-BDR member Mollah Sayeed Hossain, the wait for his release is likely to get longer.

The former sepoy from Satkhira remains behind bars in an explosives case over the 2009 Pilkhana carnage even though he has already served his sentence in a murder case over the carnage.

"My brother's 10-year jail term in the murder case ended seven years ago. Yet, he has not been released. My elderly parents are very ill. They wait for his return every day, hoping to embrace their son before death," said Sayeed's brother Abul Hasan.

"With hopes for a better future, my brother joined the BDR sports unit in March 2006. He soon became the family's main breadwinner," he told The Daily Star.

Sayeed is among 161 people -- mostly ex-members of the erstwhile Bangladesh Rifles (BDR) -- who still languish in prison, despite having already served their jail terms or being acquitted in the murder case.

Of them, 153 were sentenced to 10 years in prison by the High Court, while the rest were acquitted of murder charges in 2013, according to case records.

Their release is still stalled by the explosives case, which remains pending at a Dhaka tribunal with no significant progress, said lawyers concerned.

One such person is Maksudur Rahman, a former BDR Lance Naik, who has been in prison for 16 and a half years. His prison sentence in the murder case ended several years ago.

Voicing frustration at the prolonged detention, his wife Sharmin Akter said, "The horrific Pilkhana tragedy shook the entire nation. But the way it shattered my family is difficult to express in words."

Without Maksudur by her side, Sharmin faced great difficulties in raising her two children.

"Nobody can fathom how difficult my children's lives have been without their father. We have been waiting for him every single day for over 16 years," she said.

Legal experts say the prolonged detention of the 161 people exposes deep flaws in the country's justice system, underscoring the urgent need for a law to compensate victims for unjust imprisonment.

Supreme Court lawyer Ishrat Hasan said, "The

Cops examining video of Hadi murder suspect

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Police are examining a video of Faisal Karim Masud, the prime accused in the murder of Inquilab Moncho spokesperson Sharif Osman Hadi, which recently surfaced on social media, said Md Sazzat Ali, commissioner of Dhaka Metropolitan Police (DMP).

"We will speak after the examination is complete," he said yesterday while responding to a question at the Crime Reporters Association of Bangladesh's Best Reporting Award ceremony at the Dhaka Reporters Unity auditorium.

Earlier on December 28, the DMP said Faisal and his associate Alamgir had fled to India through the Haluaghat border. Later, two video clips of Faisal -- who has been on the run since the shooting -- surfaced on Facebook in which he said that he was not involved in the murder and that he was in Dubai, not India.

Meanwhile, Inquilab Moncho continued holding demonstrations demanding justice for Hadi, also an aspirant independent candidate from Dhaka-8.

But the platform's scheduled "March for Justice" programme did not take place.

Several attempts were made to contact Abdullah Al Jaber, member secretary of Inquilab Moncho, but he
